

Internet Explorer Still Sucks

Contributed by Jeffrey Cleary

More than two years after I wrote this post: Internet Explorer Sucks the Speed from High-Speed, Firefox continues to be exponentially faster than IE.

For some reason, Microsoft just can't get it together. Side-by-side, Firefox loads pages almost 10 times faster than IE. While Firefox continues to get faster, and more useful, Internet Explorer seems doomed to Microsoft's "Flawed" software release program.

I guess if folks only use Internet Explorer and never even try out Firefox, they will never know how slow IE is. If you've never tried Firefox's web browser, take a moment now to download Firefox from their website and install it. Give it a test drive, you'll find a much faster surfing experience than that of IE.